TIPS ON PREPPING YOUR ENGINE PARTS FOR SHIPMENT

1) Power wash bike and engine before attempting to dismantle so you don't get dirt inside the open crankcase.

2) For top end only services, follow this procedure;

Remove the seat, gas tank, and exhaust pipe, drain the coolant, remove the head stay brackets, and disconnect the radiator hoses to the top end assembly.

Remove the right side powervalue cover, disconnect the powervale actuating rod and don't dismantle the powervalve system. Don't lift the powervalve actuating rod up and down because it may cause the powervalve governor damage!

3) Remove the 4 nuts holding the cylinder to the crankcases, use a plastic mallet to rock the cylinder from side-to-side to un-stick the cylinder from the case-pins. Don't use a hammer and chisel to separate the cylinder from the crankcases! If it's stuck, spray the cylinder studs with penetrating oil let it catalyze for a few hours before attempting to remove the cylinder. Some top end assemblies require the head or exhaust manifold to be removed to get the cylinder out of the frame.

4) If you have already disassembled the powervalve system, please put the parts in a plastic bag so they don't get lost. In order for us to do the complete job, we need complete parts!

5) Put the top end assembly in a plastic bag so it doesn't leak spooge through the box. You're welcome to send your old piston and spark plug for free analysis.

Instructions on How to Ship Top Ends or Engines for Service

For individual top end parts, send the complete cylinder, head, and powervalves all bolted together. Place it in a plastic bag so it doesn't leak through the box. Use a 10x10x10 inch box and plenty of tightly packed paper or Styrofoam peanuts. For complete engines we suggest draining the engine oil, removing the shift lever and spark plug, then either double box it or put the engine in a plastic crate and then into a cardboard box.

All orders are checked into the system everyday and your order will receive immediate attention. You can send your parts by any freight carrier. Take care to insure the parts for their replacement value and make sure you send this form in the package. Depending on the shipping carrier, you can request email notification that your order has arrived at EGR. When we return ship the package to you, our carrier UPS will email you and inform you on which day it will arrive at your address.
